- (2) MSCI World Index in Sterling, net dividends reinvested, priced at close of business US time, source: MSCI Inc. The MSCI World Index is a generic portfolio of global equities across all sectors and, as such, is a fair comparison given the Fund is also global and sector agnostic.

- (4) UK Pound Sterling Overnight Index SONIA, source: Refinitiv.
- (5) A (retail) class AMC 0.9% / I (institutional) class AMC 0.7%. (I-class for sums over £1m or at manager's discretion).
- (6) This figure will reduce if the fund increases in size: £30,000 of fixed costs over £10m = 0.30% but only 0.03% over £100m, for example.
- (7) The fund normally only buys and sells positions once a month to keep trading costs as low as possible.

Monthly Commentary (August 2023)

During August the Global Multi Asset Fund retreated by 0.7%, compared with -0.9% for Global Equities and -0.6% for UK fixed income. As at the beginning of September most equity markets were in positive territory for the year with Global equities up 10.2%. Government bonds have been weak in all markets. At the beginning of the month, our signals caused the fund to buy back into UK and Emerging Market equities and our Emerging government bond silo and we did not sell out of any existing positions. This left the fund around 45% invested with c.55% in cash or cash-equivalents.

This month we draw attention to some interesting economic and geo-political developments. One key theme is whether China could be going ex-growth as Japan did in the late 80s for similar reasons. China has been overly reliant on the property sector, with the collapse of the developer Evergreen and the near collapse of Country Garden triggering problems for banks and personal liquidity. Their aging population could also begin to be a drag on growth. The latest quarter's GDP figure is +0.8%, very low by Chinese standards. India is arguably in the ascendant, with a population surpassing that of China and an economy growing at 8%+ per annum. It has even celebrated a successful moon landing. Meanwhile the Euro Area could well go into recession but in the UK the Office for National Statistics remarkably has upgraded UK GDP growth for the past twelve months to +0.6% making it no longer the laggard. The US economy remains robust but alarmingly on the back of deficit financing. It also seems that the cycle of rising interest rates may be turning and lower commodity prices and massively reduced freight rates augur well for lower inflation.

One final point we would note this month is the impact that structurally higher interest rates may have on the GMAF strategy. Our fund can often have high allocations to cash or cash-equivalent risk free assets (55% at present as given above) – to provide significant downside protection. For the last several years, those holdings have earned a negligible yield, given where interest rates have been. With higher rates, this dynamic should be rather different in future with the chance to earn far higher yields on our defensive positions when we have high cash balances.

Key Risks

- Counterparty risk: The Fund can conclude various transactions with contractual partners. If a contractual partner becomes insolvent, it can no longer or can only partly settle unpaid debts owed to the Fund.
a wide selection of Exchange Traded Funds which themselves own many hundreds of underlying assets.
 - Market Risk: External factors can cause an entire asset class to decline in value which would result in a decrease in the value of investments. The Fund aims to mitigate this risk by investing in all major asset classes in many geographic regions and owning assets which are often negatively correlated.
 - Concentration Risk: The Fund seeks to minimise concentration risk by owning a wide selection of Exchange Traded Funds which themselves own many hundreds of underlying assets.
 - Liquidity Risk: adverse market conditions may affect the ability to sell certain assets when necessary. The Fund invests nearly exclusively in large, liquid ETFs so liquidity risk should be significantly lower than in a more conventional actively managed fund investing in single assets.
